

DEMOCRATS DEMAND TAX CHANGES

SENATE FIGHT OVER MEASURE IS UNDER WAY

Extent of Reductions Will Be Determined by Fight—Greater Cut in Normal Rates and Less Cut in Higher Surtax Brackets Called For.

(By The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 3.—The Senate launched today into its fight on the income tax schedule, the result of which will determine the amount of reductions after this year in the taxes of more than 14,000,000 tax payers.

Senator Simmons, North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee and author of the income tax plan endorsed by the Democratic conference, outlined his proposal calling for a greater reduction in the normal rates than under the Mellon plan but less of a cut in the higher surtax brackets.

An eight hour session yesterday filled with rapid developments disposed of all except the "fighting provisions" of the bill as Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee characterized the income, corporation and estate tax schedules. The Democrats have agreed in party conferences to make an almost unit stand for changes in all of these provisions.

A Republican insurgent-democratic coalition appeared yesterday for the first time in the revenue bill consideration, resulting in the opening of thirty-two public amendments. Thirty-two Democrats joined in support of the proposal which was made by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, and carried, 48 to 27. The house had voted to open these returns to inspection by the Senate Finance Committee and the Senate Finance Committee had approved this provision with the addition of power to the committee to make public any relevant or useful information obtained from the returns.

The Democratic income tax schedule advanced today provides specifically for a reduction in the present normal rates of four per cent. on incomes below $4,000 and two per cent. above $4,000; four per cent. on incomes below $4,000 and two per cent. above $4,000; four per cent. on incomes below $4,000 and two per cent. above $4,000.

Admitting lack of support for the Mellon plan, Republicans are preparing for a compromise. Many favor a stand for the present compromise adopted by the use, providing for normal rates of 2 per cent. on incomes below $4,000, five per cent. on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000 and 6 per cent. on incomes above that amount. The surtax rates in this amount start at 1 1/2 per cent. at $10,000 graduating up to 3 1/2 per cent. at $200,000.

Hundreds Pay Carr Respect
(By The Associated Press.)
DURHAM, N. C., May 3.—Long lines of sorrowing citizens passed the bier of the late General Julian S. Carr this morning as those among whom he had spent his life time and for whom he had labored came to pay their last farewells. The body arrived last night from Chicago and the family was left alone with his dead until today. This morning, however, the doors were opened that the dead was brought here and formed a silent escort to his late home. Among the conferees were the late General Carr for whom he had done much during his life.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home and at Oakwood Cemetery at 3:30 o'clock.

CO-OPS TO START WORK ON SHED STORAGE IN 30 DAYS

The Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association has closed an option it has held for two or more months on property not far from the Southern Railway Company on which a ten million pound shed storage will be built. It was learned today that building operations will be commenced within thirty days. Plans for the building have been drawn and officials of the organization just now are seeking an experienced builder who will take charge of the construction of the shed storage as well as that which is to be built at South Boston and one similar in size at Blackstone. The total cost of the three storage plants each one of which will have similar capacity, will be between $180,000 and $200,000 it was said this morning.

The property on which the shed storage will be built is that strip of land which lies between the tracks of the Atlantic and Danville Railway, and the Lynch-Burn Company on lower Cragside street. A building larger in size than the warehouse will

CUBA APPEALS TO U. S. REPORT CAUSES MORE SEARCHERS TO BE SENT OUT

Natives Claim They Saw Plane Headed Northeast—Barren Peninsular Coast Searched While Ships at Sea Also Keep Watchful Eye.

(By The Associated Press.)
FALSE PASS, Alaska, May 3.—As a result of information from natives scattered along the barren Alaskan peninsula that they saw Major Frederick L. Martin, who has been missing since Wednesday morning, headed northwestward in the Chignik Lakes and the Bering Sea, wireless calls were broadcast today to all vessels in that northern body of water and additional parties were sent out to search the rocky Bering sea shore. While government ships and cannery boats continued combing the southwestern shores of the Aleutian Islands and the Alaska peninsula as far east as Chignik, the next scheduled stop for the three was Alaska Island, 150 miles southwest of where they were stationed. Orders were telegraphed to them yesterday from Washington, to speed westward and not wait for the next command.

Reports received from King Cove, stated that vessels had searched unsuccessfully for Major Martin and his mechanic, staff Sergeant Alva Harvey, in two harbors and five bays. Efforts to find them in Leonard and Adolpho Harbors and Coal Bay, Belkofsky, Volcano, Bear and Pavlov Bays, proved unavailing. Last dispatches declared the ship went as far as Ivan Island at the foot of Pavlov volcano. Other sailing groups from Chignik returned last night without definite trace of the aviators.

The route the missing flier attempted was a short cut to Dutch Harbor, although the gale has moderated and the temperature has climbed slightly. It was said here that the missing men might be suffering from lack of food as they did not carry provisions from Chignik. Chances of killing game were small, natives said. One faint ray of hope that the men might not die from starvation was disclosed by a member of the coast guard crew who told overland searching parties that Major Martin was impressed with a fishing pole while staying in Seattle. Nearly all the streams and the coastline north along the North Pacific shore line offer good fishing.

COMRADES BELIEVE MARTIN IS SAFE
(By The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 3.—Comrades at Dutch Harbor, Alaska, of Major Martin, missing commander of the army round the world flight expedition, believe Martin and his companion are safe and will be located. The message said that Lieutenant Smith, senior officer with the planes at Dutch Harbor, received today by Major General Patrick, chief of the air service, declared Martin and Sergeant Harvey had matches and emergency rations with them sufficient for several weeks.

"We believe he (Martin) is safe and will soon be located," Lieutenant Smith's telegram said. The message said that the weather was steadily improving, which helped in the search. No ship was expected to reach Dutch Harbor until Friday, it said, from the "most likely location" of the missing fliers. It was pointed out that there are numerous harbors for possible refuge.

FIRST CLASS MAIL POUCH IS RIFLED AT THE DEPOT
A mail robbery, the extent of which has not been determined, took place last night between ten o'clock when a mail pouch containing first-class mail from Richmond to points north, was taken from the Southern Railway station platform and rifled.

The mail pouch bearing several thousand letters was carried to a point behind the large tobacco storage warehouse where the thief or thieves took time in ripping open letters for the purpose of seeing if they contained currency.

The mail pouch ripped open by a knife and the heap of white envelopes were seen early this morning by Sergeant Master T. M. Irwin, who was supervising the shifting of some cars in the immediate locality. The police were notified and the postoffice authorities were called.

SLOW RECOVERY FROM STORM IN THE SOUTHEAST

Organized Relief Is Underway in All Sections Swept By Tornadoes.

(By The Associated Press.)
ATLANTA, Ga., May 3.—With organized relief well under way in virtually all localities, the Southeast slowly was recovering from the series of tornadoes of mid-week which laid waste sections of seven states, taking a toll of 106 lives, injuring hundreds rendering hundreds of others homeless and damaging property to the extent of about $10,000,000.

Supervised by field units of the American Red Cross, the various local relief agencies bent their efforts today toward penetrating to the outermost fringes of the storms' sweep to complete so far as possible a definite survey of the stricken sections.

Meanwhile the injured are being treated in available hospitals within the affected area while the homeless either are being sheltered and fed in hastily constructed concentration camps or in the homes of the more fortunate survivors.

National resources of the Red Cross are being tapped upon means of the donors. In addition to funds which have been made available by headquarters of the organization to aid properly to administer relief, several hundred tents and necessary equipment have been dispatched to provide temporary homes for the destitute.

Ro-li-ki Rally Culmination of Boys' Week Here

An "S. O. S." call was received from Scoutmaster Walter W. Waddell at Camp Ro-li-ki early this afternoon. He said that there were some perfectly good three hundred Danville boys out at the camp with no adequate provision made for bringing them home this evening. Mr. Waddell requested the city to make arrangements to ask Danville car owners to motor out the short distance to the camp to help bring the boys home.

He added that the machines should be there at 4 o'clock or if that hour be inconvenient, any time between 4 and 6 o'clock.

Approximately 300 boys today seized the opportunity to spend a day out in the open air, a fitting culmination in the open air of the early days of the Boys' Week observance which has been so successful as to warrant the statement that it will be henceforth an annual local undertaking.

The boys who were taken to Camp Ro-li-ki early this morning found a programme brimful of excitement and interest and enjoyed at noon a choice spread of fried chicken and other delicacies for hearty appetites prepared by the women's organizations of the society which had been hidden.

MUNITIONS ARE ASKED FOR TO FIGHT REBELS

State Department Will Make Arms and Ammunition Available Without Delay.

(By The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 3.—The Cuban government, facing a "condition of violence" in Santa Clara province, caused by revolutionists, has appealed to the Washington government for the purchase of a considerable amount of arms and ammunition for use by the Zayas forces against the revolutionists.

The appeal today was approved by the state department and forwarded to the War Department where it is regarded as certain that the arms and ammunition asked for will be made available to Cuban authorities without delay.

In the absence of Secretary Weeks, War Department officials declined to reveal the amount of munitions asked for but indicated there would be no trouble in filling the order from the supply of excess war supplies held by the army.

REBELS STILL AT LARGE
(By The Associated Press.)
HAVANNA, Cuba, May 3.—President Zayas left Havana today for Santa Clara province, where armed men are in revolt against his government. He was accompanied by Secretary of Interior Irujo and General Hertero, chief of staff.

The president's departure was kept a secret until sometime after his special train with a military guard had left the city. It was understood he was going to Cienfuegos, near where most of the trouble has centered in the last few days.

It was declared by sub-Secretary of the Interior De La Torre that President Zayas desired to ascertain personally the exact situation in Santa Clara province and that his departure for the scene of the anti-Zayas and anti-revolution outbreak did not mean that the situation was more serious.

ARMS IN FLORIDA SEIZED.
(By The Associated Press.)
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., May 3.—The arrest of Luis Guillermo Gallo yesterday in Havana on suspicion that he was acting as messenger for Cuban rebel forces and his statement that he represents a local tourist agency caused belief here that a large quantity of arms and ammunition still stored in the postoffice building here were intended for Cuban rebel forces.

The arms were seized more than two months ago by agents of the department of justice.

NEWSPAPER STOPPED.
(By The Associated Press.)
HAVANNA, May 3.—The morning newspaper El Sol, was suspended today and copies of the paper were seized on the street by police acting on orders of the government. It was officially declared that the chief reason was publication today in El Sol of what purported to be a message from Dr. Federico Laredo Bru, who is reported to have been secretly in Havana, to avoid arrest on suspicion of implication in the armed revolt in Santa Clara province.

GALLO IS IDENTIFIED.
(By The Associated Press.)
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., May 3.—Luis Guillermo Gallo held in Havana on grounds of suspicion in connection with the Cuban rebel uprising was identified today as "Indian Luis" connected with local Cuban tourist agency, who left here Thursday with a party of tourists for Havana.

Simple Way to Reduce Interference

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
NEA Service Radio Editor
 While it is true that the wave trap is a simple device, it is not simple to use. It is especially in this simple contrivance that the elimination of nearby broadcast stations and in reducing the minimum resistance from an oscillating circuit is the key.

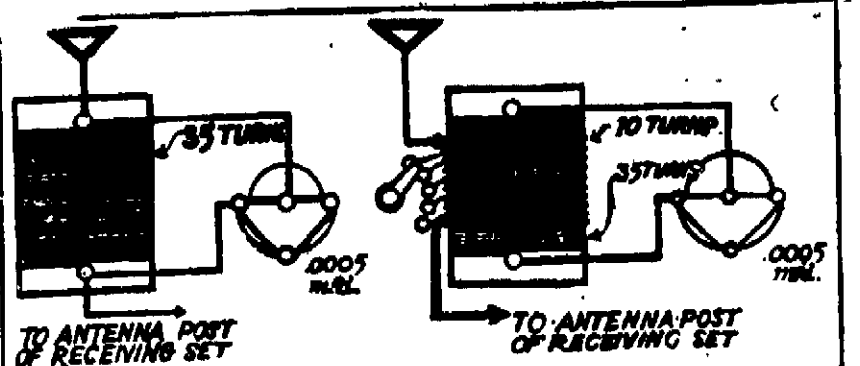

Anyone with the least mechanical ingenuity and at little expense can build this wave trap. It consists of the following parts:

A 3-inch, thin cylindrical form, 4 inches long and composed of a good non-conducting material.

A few feet of No. 22 or 20 conductor, not varnished.

A switch and five switch points.

Where great difficulty is encountered in tuning out a local station, because of its broadness in transmission, and its extreme proximity, and where there are more nearby broadcast stations trying to force their programs into your receiver, the trap shown in diagram at right should be used.

TWO FORMS OF WAVE TRAP, SHOWING CONNECTIONS OF PARTS.

Simple Form.
 But in case of only a single violator in your district, the simpler hookup will do. This is constructed as follows:

Wind the 22 DCCC wire around the tubing for about 35 turns and hook one end to the aerial lead-in and the other direct to the aerial binding post of the receiver. Shunt the condenser across the two terminals of the coil.

To operate this trap, set the dial of the tuner in your receiver a little off from the local station that you want eliminated and adjust the trap variable condenser until the station's signal is as faint as you can possibly get it. Then tune in the distant station and again adjust the trap circuit.

This careful adjustment should be made without varnished attachment on the wave-trap condenser, so that you may know at exactly what point to set the condenser whenever you want to tune out the local station.

In case of more trouble than from just one local station, the more complicated wave trap should be used.

For More Violators.
 On top of the 35 turns of wire, and in the same direction, wind 10 turns of the same wire, midway between the terminals. This is the primary and the larger coil of the secondary of a separate inductance.

The primary of ten turns should be tapped every second turn, so that any station desired may be eliminated by variance not only of the condenser, but of the primary inductance.

In this case, the variable condenser is shunted across the secondary, but the aerial lead-in is brought direct to the primary coil of the wave trap and the switch connected to the aerial binding post of the receiver.

If the materials used in this device are efficient, the receiver should be very selective. Double silk or cotton covered wire should be used, but never enameled or any other form of wire. The tubing must be thin and of hard rubber or other good dielectric material.

Of all parts, the condenser must be best. It must have extremely low loss, designated so by the manufacturer, and must be efficiently built.

Be careful to keep this device about a foot away from the receiver, so as not to couple it too closely and affect reception rather than help it.

RADIO NOTES

OPERA REPLACES JAZZ
 Jazz is losing ground regularly throughout the country. Station WJAX, Cleveland, for instance, is planning a program of operatic music to replace its regular jazz evening on May 13. And others are doing likewise.

JAZZ IN BACKGROUND
 Jazz got back stage in a recent poll conducted by WBAY, Columbus, O. Among the songs favored by its fans, WBAY found the sentimental old timers won hands down against modern jazz.

X-RAY INTERFERES
 If you have persistent interference in your receiver, look around you for a neighboring physician who may be using X-ray or violet ray machine. These instruments have been found almost uncontrollable offenders in radio.

TO SOUTH AMERICA
 One of the regular innovations by KDKA, Pittsburgh, is an all-Spanish program, transmitted for the particular benefit of fans in South American countries.

RADIO IS PASTOR
 When the pastor of the Community church in Hampden, Mass., had to attend an out-of-town meeting one Sunday, recently, he installed a receiver and loud speaker at the pulpit and let the pastor of one of Springfield's larger Congregational churches conduct the services.

RECORD BROADCASTINGS
 Although Class B stations are not permitted to broadcast phonograph music, one of the largest record manufacturers is planning a station from which the songs and other selections of famous big-name artists may be put on the air. For this special purpose, perhaps, permission may be obtained for the erection of a Class B Studio.

AFTER THE CRIMINALS
 Larchmont, N. J., has followed in the trail of New York, Detroit and Philadelphia in chasing criminals by radio. The station is planned to work in conjunction with that of the New York police.

GUIDE BALLOONISTS
 Weather bulletins from station WOC Davenport, Ia., guided balloonists of the U. S. Air Service. In their test flights over Illinois to establish the truth of forecasting theory. Fifteen such tests are planned.

ESPERANTO PROGRAM
 Esperanto is the only language spoken on a test program sent out by WIP, Philadelphia. The broadcast hopes to break broadcasting records with these programs, which will attempt to reach beyond the shores of America.

FIVE ELEMENT TUBE
 A vacuum tube consisting of a filament, two grids and two plates is the invention of a German radio engineer. It is a step beyond the four electrode tube invented by a Frenchman. The new tube is used for generating small waves of only two or three meters.

There are 25,000 radio dealers in the United States. WJAZ, Chicago, has changed its call letters to WGN. One megohm is equal to 1,000,000 ohms resistance.

NIGHTINGALE RADIO
 British broadcasters are planning to try broadcasting the song of the nightingale in its native haunts, this summer. It will be caught by a microphone set near the bird's nest and transmitted by the famous station 2LO.

SOLDIER CONNECTIONS
 Every fan knows connections should be soldered to keep them secure. But it isn't necessary to solder all, especially those that can be screwed down tightly with pliers. These are, for instance, the lines to the tube sockets, transformers and some binding posts.

RADIO FOOLS POLICE
 Since the police have been active in repressing betting on races near Cleveland, O., bookmakers and others gambling on the races have taken up radio for their activities. Race information is sent on low wavelengths by prearranged code from small transmitting stations near the track to the receivers.

Interesting Radio Facts
 British broadcasters plan another district radio broadcasting station in Belfast, Ireland.
 Jazz music and coarse humor are prohibited in the programs of KFGZ Berrien Springs, Mich.
 Trans-Atlantic traffic of the Radio Corporation of America has risen to a rate of 90,000 words daily.
 About 20,000,000 fans have filed complaints about interference with the Department of Commerce.

 Eighty per cent. of the sales by radio dealers are made for radio parts.
 Ten per cent. radio tax, say its opponents, will cost manufacturers $1,000,000 and the public $25,000,000 annually.

METHODISTS ENDORSE WORLD COURT
 (By The Associated Press)
 SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 2.—On two issues of world wide interest the Methodist Episcopal general conference took its stand in the session held today. The eighty-five delegates unanimously passed a resolution favoring the entry of the United States into the permanent court of international justice and endorsing the foreign relations committee of the Senate for its alleged inaction in the matter. They accepted with applause and referred to committee a resolution for the church's reaffirmation of the creed and fundamental Methodist doctrine.

EXPRESS CONFIDENCE IN TRIUMPH OF M'ADOO
 (By The Associated Press)
 CHICAGO, May 2.—Renewed confidence in the "ultimate triumph" of the McAdoo campaign was expressed today by David Ladd Rockwell, national manager of the McAdoo forces, upon his return from a two-weeks' visit in eastern states.
 Mr. Rockwell claimed several delegates from Ohio, thirty-five in Pennsylvania and the solid delegation of twenty-four from North Carolina.

E. S. ANDERSON CO. IS IN LIQUIDATION
 The well known clothing firm, known as the E. S. Anderson Co., Inc., yesterday afternoon decided to go into voluntary liquidation and wind up the business of the concern. In carrying out this purpose it became necessary to make an assignment to a trustee, and that was done yesterday. W. S. Rendleman, assistant cashier of the Commercial bank, being named as the trustee.

The E. S. Anderson Co. was incorporated in 1918 with a capitalization of $10,000 and may be called a close corporation or an incorporated firm. The last inventory of the concern, made very recently, showed assets consisting of stocks of goods, fixtures and equipment and bill receivable aggregating $26,000. The liabilities are considerably less than this sum. The firm is not insolvent, said Mr. Anderson last night, but in view of unfavorable conditions in that line of business it was deemed wisest to go into voluntary liquidation and thus avoid insolvency. The stock will, it is understood, be disposed of to the best advantage, and it is the hope and expectation of the assignor that the proceeds will enable the concern to pay dollar for dollar and wind up its business with some surplus for the assignors.

No schedule of liabilities nor detailed statement of assets was filed with the deed assigning the goods and chattels to a trustee to be disposed of for the benefit of creditors.

NO LIGHT ON BODY FOUND IN RIVER

(By The Associated Press.)
TAPPAHANNOCK, Va., May 2.—At the end of the second day's search for a body that might lead to identification of the body of a young woman found by fishermen in the Rappahannock River near here yesterday, authorities were forced tonight to admit that the case is still a mystery. Nothing has developed that gives the slightest working clue.

One important fact was established today, however, when a coroner's jury decided that the young woman "came to her death otherwise than drowning." No water was found in the lungs and the throat was lacerated and bruised. It is believed now that she was strangled and her body thrown into the river at some point far above the place where it was found.

County officers have advanced the theory that she may have been one of the barges plying up and down the Rappahannock to Baltimore or Philadelphia and that she met her death following a quarrel, but no facts have been uncovered to substantiate this belief.

So. Boston News

SOUTH BOSTON, Va., May 3.—W. L. Smith, of South Boston, druggist, was arrested by a North Danville blue-coat on last Wednesday evening for filching across the bridge which spans the Dan river, at a faster rate of speed than 15 miles per hour. Woodcock hauled him into the county jail and he was fined $24.85. Mr. Smith says that it was not his intention to violate the speed law, and that he was only picking up a little speed in order to make the grade on the other side of the river in high gear.

The case in the papers that he was only credited with being fined $21.80, which shows a discrepancy of $3.05. He has no quarrel to pick with the law enforcers of Danville, but that he would like to be given credit for the full amount of the fine.

The Senior class of the Halifax High school will present the play, "The Path Across The Hill," in the auditorium of the school building at 8 o'clock this evening.

Judging from the present outlook, the farmers of Halifax county are going to try their hand at growing the sticky staple this year. Some of the past experiences with cotton in the county tend to indicate that it can be successfully grown, and that the yield is about equal to the average yield per acre of the counties just across the line in the "Tar Heel State."

About fifty boys in the county have pledged themselves to cultivate one acre in cotton this year. Taking the present shortage of cotton into consideration, this will be a splendid time for the farmers of the county to give the venture a trial, for all indications are that it will continue to sell for a good price for several years to come. And on the other hand it should prove a relief to the eyesight of those who have always had them focused on the "weed," and the contrast should at least be of interest to the tobacco growers of the county.

Miss Lucile James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. James, pleased a large audience, when she gave a solo recital in Stelden Hall, Harrisonburg, Wednesday evening.

DIRECTORS IMPRESSED WITH STRIDES MADE BY D. M. I.

Fifteen directors of the Danville Chamber of Commerce were guests yesterday evening of Danville Military Institute where an inspection of the military school was undertaken, after a full dress parade given by the entire cadet corps. The culminating feature was dinner in the institute mess hall with the students.

The directors, many of whom were instrumental in making possible the resumption of Danville Military Institute, expressed pleasure and surprise over the development of the school and were particularly struck with the military appearance of the cadets on parade on the campus where a number of drill maneuvers were executed. To many of them, it was the first intensive study of the college since Col. W. M. Kemper assumed control of it two years ago and they were impressed by its development.

The directors' visit was not marked by speechmaking at the dinner table, it was an informal affair in every sense and for that reason was highly enjoyable. Col. Kemper provided each director with a synopsis showing what has been accomplished at Danville Military Institute during the past two years, which is evidence of a progressive administration.

Col. Kemper told the visitors that his chief aim now is to advertise Danville Military Institute and to increase the enrollment of the school.

It was an additional number of boys and with the Chamber of Commerce directorate eager to help the institution in further development, every effort will be made to increase the enrollment of the school.

The progress of the college under its present administration may be summarized as follows:

The Board of Trustees, appointed by the Synod of Virginia, received the property of the Danville Military Institute from the former Trustees in 1922.

The New Board immediately spent about $17,000 in repairs and improvements of the building, including the system of barracks; installing new heating system with water supply and sewerage; repairing outside walls, painting roof; building new quadrangle; laying roads and sidewalks; grading around property.

A new building containing Dining Hall and superintendent's quarters, erected at a cost of about $17,500. Additional property adjoining the institute has been purchased at a cost of $2,500.

A swimming-pool and tennis courts have been added, costing about $2,000.

The Laboratory and gymnasium have been equipped at a cost of more than $1,000.

A considerable amount of furniture and equipment has been added.

The property of Danville Military Institute, at a cost of about $1,000 to the institute, a six inch water main into the property which now provides an adequate water supply with fire protection.

D. M. I. is now asking the County Commissioners to provide a good road along College avenue to Schoolfield.

Firing range with target pit has been provided.

The institute is beneficiary to the amount of $50,000 of the million dollar fund of the Presbyterians in the Synod of Virginia, of which we have received about $20,000 to date. The institute is also receiving about $6,000 a year from benevolent funds of the church which is equivalent to an endowment of $125,000.

The enrollment during the second year is 80 cadets representing 12 states and two foreign countries. The faculty consists of 6 men, and the most efficient matron in the institution.

The institute is accredited by the Association of Secondary schools and colleges of the Southern States, and is a member of the Association of Military schools and colleges in the United States.

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE
by RUBY AYRES
A RIA SERVICE

SYNOPSIS
The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Bretherton proves an unhappy one. When war is declared, Nigel is glad to enlist. He leaves Dolly under the care of his mother, Mrs. Bretherton. Dolly is killed and Dolly marries an old sweetheart, Robert Durham. Dolly and Robert sail for America and word comes of the sinking of the ship on which they were passengers. When Nigel's older brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow, Mary, is ashamed to tell him of Dolly's marriage. David mistakes Mary for his brother's wife and asks her to come to live at Red Grange with him and his aunt, Miss Varney. Mary is given a hearty welcome to her new home by David and his aunt. David shows Mary over the grounds of Red Grange. Mary likes the place.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
David followed at once. He talked trivialities until they were back again in the house. Mary escaped to her own room then. She was afraid of David; his new friendliness toward her made her afraid. Something in the steady kindness of his eyes seemed to pierce the mean little deceptions of her heart and leave her ashamed. "But it's not as if I were trying to get anything for myself," she argued with her conscience. "I only want to be here in Nigel's home for a little while, for just a few days. I will be quite willing to go away then." She tried to comfort herself with this assurance; but she felt miserable as she went down to lunch. It seemed as if everyone must know, as if the very servants knew that she was an impostor; even the eyes of the faded portraits that lined the room seemed to be looking their contempt and condemnation at her. She could not bear to meet their cold, steady gaze. She was roused from her thoughts to the sound of David's voice; he was speaking to Miss Varney. "I heard from Monty Fisher this morning," said David. "I wish you would write to Miss Fisher and ask them both down here for a week-end. He turned to Mary. "Have you ever met Fisher?" Mary tried to die away in her throat, but it seemed to die away in her throat, she moistened her lips nervously. "After a moment," "You mean Mr. Fisher, the soloist?" "Yes," he said. "He is my friend. He used to see to all Nigel's affairs for him." "I have met him—yes," said Miss Varney. "A very nice young man," said David. "I will certainly ask them down." Mary felt as if she must burst out laughing. "What a short-lived paradise hers was to be after all. She knew that Fisher would recognize her at once—knew that she could hope for nothing more once he saw her there installed as Nigel's widow. A desperate idea of appealing to David not to ask them rushed into her mind. But what reason could she give? It would only arouse his suspicion at once; and, besides, if Fisher were his best friend, how could she hope that her secret would be kept? David was speaking to her. "Have you met Miss Fisher, too?" "No—oh, no, I haven't." "I don't think," said David, "that you should care for her. Miss Varney interferred. "She isn't in the least like her brother. I can't tolerate dressed-up dolls!" David laughed. "Oh, come, dear, she isn't as bad as that. And Monty thinks the world of her." Miss Varney said "Humph!" She looked at Mary, and shook her head. "You wait all you see her," she admonished, "and then tell me who is right, David or I?" Mary did not answer. When lunch was ended, and David rose to leave the room, she made some excuse and followed. The desperate idea of appealing to him was still lingering in her mind. He had been so kind to her that morning—surely, she asked him not to invite the Fishers down for the present—But what excuse could she give? What reason that would be adequate? She stopped outside the dining-room door with a feeling of utter helplessness. He came back a little. "Do you want me?" "No, only—then came wholly back. "Would you like to go out? There is the car. I shall be only too delighted if you will come." He was well aware of the restlessness in her eyes. Some new feeling long to help her and comfort her. He had never before met a woman who so appealed to him as this one. "It wouldn't be bothering you," she told him. "But I am afraid it would be." "Nonsense. Run away and put your bonnet on." She laughed outright at that. "I don't wear a bonnet!" "Don't you? I'm sorry." He laughed with her. "Hat, then—is that better?" "Yes." Chapter XXVII A Respite He stood looking after her as she ran up the stairs. When she came down again he was waiting in the hall. He wore a big coat and a soft hat; a fur-lined cloak hung over his arm. "This is for you," he said, seizing her glance at it. "It's cold morning even on a warm day, and the wind is chilly this afternoon. He wrapped it round her, laughing. He saw how much too large it was for her slim figure. "It's beautifully warm," she told him. Miss Varney came to the door to see them start.

CROOKEDNESS IN HIGH PLACES

The severe sentence of ten years in the federal penitentiary imposed on Governor McCray, of Indiana, for using the United States mail to perpetrate a fraud is striking evidence of the public temper manifested against men in high positions of trust, who are willing to run the risk of a blighted career in betraying it. The imposition of such a penalty at first appears singularly heavy, when compared with the punishment which is being meted out day by day for men convicted of various crimes of violence, and for offenses against the common law. It is none too heavy when one views the position in life of the convicted man who, above all others, is expected to be exemplary in personal character. It was rather natural that a striking example should be made out of a striking figure. He was convicted by a jury on the evidence presented by the state and he was sentenced by the judge not for one offense, but for several within the same category.

The outcome of the Indiana case makes discouraging reading for men suspected of malfeasance in office of which we have read so much of recent months. It should have deterrent effect on others tempted to play fast and loose with federal and state laws and forecasts short shrift for men holding positions of public trust who are found wanting in the scales of justice. One cannot ignore the tragic aspects of the picture—that of a man who has won the confidence of the people of his state to the extent of election as governor and who sees himself publicly abused and convicted as a felon. His light as a public figure flickers out, his reputation painstakingly built on a foundation of integrity is shattered by one blow. Ten years of penal servitude, lasting disgrace, not only for himself but for his family—this is the harvest of misdoing.

Happily one finds few instances of governors going wrong. Perhaps that is why the fate meted out to Governor McCray lingers persistently in the mind. It is always the exception to the rule which creates the greatest sensation.

responsibility which characterize the local stores.

Big business buys its raw materials from the nearest source of supply. Every individual is a business in himself or herself. Thrifty buyers figure in the time, labor, transportation and market costs and buy accordingly.

AND SO HE PASSES
Hiram Johnson's campaign for a presidential nomination was a labor of love. This labor is now over. The senator has announced he will take no part in the primary campaign in Indiana but will return to Washington to rest a shattered larynx and retrieve some of the energy he has expended for several months in a uniformly hopeless quest.

It is doubtful whether this generation will ever witness another such transition from the sublime to the ridiculous as that which Hiram Johnson has experienced in recent years. Until he broke faith with those in whom the hope had been born that there was a Moses, no office in the public's power to give appeared to be beyond the qualities and the facilities with which the man was favored.

The beginning of Hiram Johnson's defeat is not to be found in the present primary campaign. It was already under way two years ago when his failure to vote on one of the greatest moral issues with which the senate ever has been faced fully illuminated for the first time the true political character of the man. His intemperate utterances and his consuming bitterness in recent months have served only to accentuate the finality of his defeat—the defeat not merely of a self-seeking politician but of a legend which had blossomed and thrived for a decade.

His relinquishment of hope now will prove no conspicuous loss to the public, for the candidacy of Hiram Johnson has "lived unknown and few could know when Lucy ceased to be."

Playing Marbles.
When the boys begin playing marbles spring is at hand. The robin sign occasionally fails us. A robin is sometimes seen hopping around in a snowstorm. The ground hog sign is without value. But the marble playing sign is infallible. One advantage of the sign is that you don't have to witness the act to know what's going on. The dirty knee sign is also infallible. The reason for marble playing in the early spring is the small piece of dry ground that is required. If baseball was tried the ball would get into the mud very fast. The local mighty Casey came to bat. Ten feet square of dry ground is enough for marbles.

The health people have to quarrel with marbles. It is an early spring line for the out-of-doors and the early spring lines are not excessive in numbers. It means training of coordination. The actual use of muscles in playing marbles is not great. Play is fine. To shoot just right as to direction and force means that at least a dozen muscles must perform just right and several dozen more must contribute just their parts.

One advantage of marbles as a game is that the competition is open to sub-standard boys. A boy with heart disease might not be able to play baseball, but he can and should play marbles. A pale, anemic boy will not get a chance to play on a football team but he can play marbles until he gets color and pep enough to tackle baseball.

"What do you mean—just while you are here?" she questioned. "She did not look at him. "Because I shouldn't be here long of course; only for a little while. I couldn't stay here very long; it wouldn't be right."

H. Boy. Wasn't that a pippen? And the boss himself won it, too. Herb gave the old a pill a ride that Littlejohn will never forget. It untied the knot in favor of Danville and took a brilliantly pitched game from Littlejohn. The game had bid fair to go until dark—still at the tenth frame. Littlejohn took a long wind-up and then let go. It was just where Herb wanted it for he leaned against it with all his force and—crack—it sailed. It was a glorious finish for a strenuous battle by both teams. And none were more pleased than the hundreds of ladies who were the guests of Murphy.

Pilot Murphy also played a bang-up game in the field, running all over the territory between second and third, scooping up grounds and setting fly balls, some of the chances very difficult. See him that time scooped up Standaert's scorching and pegged the runner out at Resco's station, cutting Jackson's crew off from further runs.

It was a game long to be remembered. Although there was quite a bit of poor fielding, this was overshadowed by the brilliant work of Eddie Standaert, who made one of the most sensational catches ever seen at Stonewall Jackson park when he literally took Anderson's long fly off the fence. It was struck the fence before Regan caught it and Anderson was credited with a hit but Regan's quick work held him there. It was the first play of its kind ever seen here.

Joe Stripp also again came in for honors. Joe got his third homer of the season, a high sailor over the right-field high signs. Littlejohn had fooled him on two, his swing was at them, but missed. He looked to be an easy mark but that third one was his liking and he sent it on a high and wide. In the following frame he made a brilliant stop of Price's hot grounder and pegged the runner out at first.

"Art" Treffy made a great catch of Hamby's fly in left. In all it was a game of suspense all the way through, being uncertain until Murphy's circuit out of the fence. It was featured by poor fielding, brilliant fielding, spectacular hitting, nipping in and out at the plate and all kinds of exciting plays.

Littlejohn pitched a great game for the Twins and deserves credit for same. His teammates also put up a good scrap and Danville should feel fortunate in winning it, thanks to Owner Murphy.

The same old story for Raleigh. Literally swamped again yesterday, High Point piling up twenty-two runs to Raleigh's five. The Pirates played rings around the Capitals, every player getting one or more runs. The Capitals were kept busy in the field, either on grounders or chasing runners. And Danville's new out winner again over Gre—Shoro, 2 to 1, leaving her and High at still tied for the top.

CHICAGO, NEW YORK AND DETROIT TIED FOR FIRST PLACE IN THE AMERICAN

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, May 2.—Chicago went into a triple tie with New York and Detroit for American League leadership yesterday by defeating Cleveland, 3 to 2, while the Yankees lost to Washington and St. Louis beat the Tigers. The Indians dropped to the cellar.

The Giants, popping out of a 12-inning struggle at Boston with their fifth consecutive victory and their eleventh win in the last 12 games, enjoy a three game lead in the National League over Cincinnati, who beat Chicago, 4 to 2, and sent the Cubs back to third place. The Pirates defeated St. Louis, 3 to 2, and moved into the first division.

John McGraw triumphed over his former pupil, Dave Hunter, in the 12th inning of a game that ended in a 12-inning struggle. McGraw moved from his position as manager to the field, where he pitched and won. The game was a classic, with both teams trading blows throughout the day.

The White Sox victory was one of four yesterday in which the winning team made a comeback in the ninth or tenth inning. The game was a close one, with both teams trading blows throughout the day.

STORMY DISAPPROVAL OF DECISION FOR VINCENTINI

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, May 2.—Stormy disapproval by spectators followed the judges' decision which declared Luis Vincentini, of Chile, the winner over Pat Moran, of New Orleans, after their 12-round lightweight battle at Madison Square Garden last night. Newspaper men at the ringside disagreed with the verdict.

The battle was comparatively tame and disappointing. Vincentini, who was in the opening stance sent Moran into a shell from which he did not emerge until the latter rounds, when he beat a body tattoo upon his rival.

Outfield catches by Southworth, Cunningham and Cooney featured, although Cooney muffed Bentley's short fly to center after a long run, allowing two New York runs to score and tying the game in the seventh.

PITCHER M'WHORTER HAS NAIL TORN FROM FINGER

In yesterday's baseball game at Stonewall Jackson park, Pitcher "Slim" McWhorter, of the Danville team, in laying down a sacrifice bunt in the fifth inning was struck on the index finger of his right or pitching hand by the ball which had been delivered with force and speed by Pitcher Littlejohn, of the Winston-Salem team. The victim was unable to pitch again for last week. The young hurler had pitched a fine game, having yielded but two hits in four innings and one of these after ample chances had been afforded to the opposing team. Only one run should have been scored on him, but for the fact that his team-mates bunched all their errors in one inning.

Winston—Murphy threw out Long at first. Anderson hit a long one against the fence and Regan caught in on the rebound. A long argument followed, but it was settled by a single. Treffy popped to Murphy. Standaert popped to Cochlin. No runs, one hit, no errors.

NINTH INNING
Winston—Harris struck out. Littlejohn flew out to right. Staley flew out to Resco. No runs, no hits, no errors.

TENTH INNING
Winston—Harris tossed Meyers out at first. Peck doubled to center. Long flew out to Belk. Anderson was purposely walked and Price was thrown out by Stripp. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Longest Game Ever Played at Raleigh

RALEIGH, N. C., May 2.—In the longest game ever played at the local park, the Capitals lost a wild 22 to 5 to the Furniture Makers yesterday 22 to 5. Long Dickie McLaughlin started for the home aggregation and was pounded off the mound in one and one-third innings. The Furniture Makers' pitcher, three Raleigh pitchers while the Capitals garnered eleven from Ford's delivery. Meekin hit one over the fence, and doubles, left thick. The game was being made during the afternoon.

Three hundred and fifty victims polished the benches for two hours and forty minutes. McLaughlin, don't mind, was listening to their batting averages at the expense of the local heroes. L. Thrasher got 6 safeties out of seven times at bat.

What's Going on in the World

WEEK'S CHIEF EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD

By CHARLES F. STEWART
 Reds—I. W. W.—not mere radicals in the sense that the world ordinarily used in this country, but regular communists just like Lenin and Trotsky—are responsible for the investigations in Washington.

Their plan is to tear down our republican form of government and set up soviet rule in America. The International once established in Russia, wanted to extend its power to the United States. So some senators, like Wheeler and Brookhart, were summoned to Moscow to plan a revolution.

The investigations are the first step in this plot.

Do You Believe It?
 Well, ex-Attorney General Daugherty tells it—tells it seriously, as a fact, not a mere crazy rumor or theory.

According to Daugherty, the Justice Department files are full of evidence about it. That, he says, is why the conspirators were so anxious to get hold of the files; that's why he wouldn't give them up—resigned first.

Frank Underhill, adds Daugherty, is financing the plot.

More Evidence
 It wasn't the Justice Department alone that had files others were anxious to get possession of. Gaston Means, International agent, and state witness for the Daugherty investigation, ing committee, had several suitcases. But Means' evidence wasn't against communists; his was against suspected grafters.

Two men, posing as Senate sergeant-at-arms, called on Means and demanded this evidence on an order ostensibly signed by Wheeler and Brookhart. Means surrendered it. Now it proves that Wheeler and Brookhart's names were forged. Thus vanished a lot of evidence against suspected officials.

Pretty Poor Case
 The charge that Wheeler used his senatorial influence before General Land Office Commissioner Spry to help Gordon Campbell, a Montana oil claimant, is falling very flat. Campbell denies it. On the contrary, Wheeler refused to appear for him. Spry, who ought to know, says Wheeler didn't appear.

Soldiers' Bonus
 The Senate passed the Soldiers' bonus bill, an insurance basis. The House must act yet, but it's so nearly in agreement with the Senate no hitch is likely. Authorities differ as to what the bonus will cost, but it will be a lot.

Arms Limitation
 President Coolidge has declared in favor of another international meeting to limit armaments some more. However, this is based on the theory that the German reparations question has been settled. This doesn't seem so certain as it did.

Up To America
 To be sure, the interested countries did agree to the Dawes committee's reparations settlement plan, but now Premier Poincare of France reneges on giving up military control in Germany unless France gets some sort of a financial guarantee. Nobody but the United States can give such a guarantee, and it's been proved over and over again that the United States isn't going to.

Murphy's Death
 Democratic politicians are all excited over the death of Boss Murphy of Tammany. Republicans are at least interested. The consensus of opinion is that Al Smith's presidential candidacy gets a heavy setback—not that he loses any basic strength, but Tammany, representing his real nucleus of supporters, is temporarily disorganized. Who'll profit by it? No one knows. Not McAdoo. But it's too soon to say.

Revolution
 Honduras' revolution is reported to have resulted American killing of several American marines, ashore guarding United States lives and property. Though presumably it was by accident, Washington officials are wondering if a good deal more interference, perhaps lasting a good while mayn't be necessary.

PROFIT-TAKING ENDS UPWARD MOVEMENT

(By The Associated Press)
 NEW YORK, May 2.—The upward movement of stock prices was checked late today by a wave of profit-taking, closing prices displaying considerable irregularity. Trading was relatively small in volume, the day's transactions totalling about 550,000 shares.

Earlier money rates and the huge surplus of funds available for stock market activity of a number of specialities was general construed as an indication of pool operations. All the so-called pivotal industrial shares closed lower. U. S. Steel common which touched par in the early trading slipped back to 93 1/2, once slightly above that figure for a net loss of nearly one point on the day. Baldwin closed 1/4 lower at 112 1/2, after having crossed 113 1/2. Studebaker, which sold as high as 84 1/2, closed 1/4 lower at 84 1/2.

A bullish demonstration in the shipping shares was based on indications of expanding ocean traffic and higher earnings as a result of the recent increase in ocean freight rates. Marine preferred touched a new 1924 high at 35 1/2, and then eased to 34 1/2. Easing of the copper metal market had no effect on the copper shares, the stability of which is probably due to reports of unusually heavy domestic consumption and prospects for a high foreign demand. Once the Dawes plan is put into operation.

A temporary burst of strength in Allied Chemical which spurred 2 points to 76 1/2 was predicted on the publication of the 1923 report showing a strong cash and working capital position. The stock closed two points below its top price of the day. New York Airbrake also made a good response to reports of improvement in the company's business. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe again fluctuated in an erratic manner, opening at 9 1/2, advancing to 9 3/4, breaking to 8 1/2, and then moving up to 9 1/2 for a net gain of 1 1/2 on the day. Greater Comfort Sought

These auto drivers and mechanics have been taken to be so wrapped up in their cars that they never thought of anything else. Now see what radio is doing! The mechanics working on this racing car of Cliff Durant's, in preparation of the coming Memorial Day races at Indianapolis, for instance, say they can't do any better work than when they listen in on a jazz band via radio. Can you believe it?

By ISRAEL KLEIN
 New Service Writer.

One of the greatest problems upon which automotive engineers are centering their attention is that of producing better riding comfort for automobile passengers.

This is one of the five major projects before the research department of the Society of Automotive Engineers this year. The other four are fuels, truck transportation costs, gears and highway construction.

The problem of riding comfort offers particular difficulty to the engineers in that they have the human element to contend with. There is nothing stable which they can measure. Every person is different in his feelings and reactions from the rest.

Little information has been available even in earning what are the basic factors that determine the riding qualities of automobiles, at one trying to study them and improve on them.

There is, however, a generally accepted working basis for the research activities into this line of automotive engineering.

The psychological and physiological effects of auto riding are being studied, for instance. What effect change of speed has on a passenger, whether one speed feels better than another, or what effect the seat upholstery has on the rider are all important questions to be considered.

Then there are topics such as the effects of wheelbase length, spring suspension, unsprung weight, types of tires, types of seats, backs and floors and irregularity of the road, that are being studied scientifically.

Besides the technical questions applied to riding comfort, the automotive society's research department has to consider the varying sides of human nature, and the effects of riding changes on different persons. For example, Dr. H. C. Dickinson of the United States Bureau of Standards suggests such questions for research as:

Do different people have radically different ideas about discomfort? Are motions which are pleasing to some, displeasing to others?

Are persons equally sensitive to motions for forces in different directions and, if not, which are more important?

Supply were among the dozen or so stocks to sell at their best prices of the year.

Railroad shares held relatively firm despite the publication of some additional disappointing March earnings statements, including that of the Pennsylvania, which showed a drop of nearly $1,750,000 in net below March, 1923, and a further reduction in car loadings. Pere Marquette established a new 1924 top at 48 and then dropped about a point while Norfolk & Western closed nearly a point lower at 12 1/2.

Call money held firm at 3 1/2 per cent. Time money funds eased somewhat, maturities up to 90 days being available at 4 1/2 per cent, but leaders held out for 4 1/2 per cent, for the longer dates. The commercial paper market was quiet with prime names ruling at 4 1/2 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates held steady on extremely dull trading. Demand sterling ruled around $4.38 1/2, and French francs were quoted around 6.40 cents. Spanish pesetas were again strong.

Debtors' Bonds and Why a Good Corporation's Word is Better Than A Good Man's Word.

Sixteen million dollars of 5 1-2 per cent debtors' bonds were recently issued by the Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania. A few weeks before that the American Telephone and Telegraph Company offered 100 million dollars of 5 1-2 per cent debtors' bonds. Both issues were sold immediately. These two issues illustrate a valuable and simple phase of financing that is not fully appreciated by the public. In personal business transactions men and banks readily accept unsecured, promissory notes when the general credit of the debtor is high. In a sense a debtors' bond is similar to a promissory note. It is, however, much more than that. It is a security for the loan. It is a security that nothing is specifically mortgaged. Nevertheless there are certain protective provisions in all sound debtors' issues which raise the investment above the promissory note. Consider for instance the provisions

Buys House By Washing Windows

THE $100,000 NEWARK (N. J.) APARTMENT WHICH HAS JUST BEEN PURCHASED BY PANKO MATIVI SOKOLOWSKI. WINDOW-CLEANER, SHOWN (IN INSET) WITH HIS CHILDREN.

NEWARK, N. J., May 3.—Opportunity for Panko Mativi Sokolowski, late of the Ukraine, knocked on a window pane.

And he grabbed it with both hands. For window cleaning, on the edge of the city skyline, had given him a broad perspective of American life.

For years while perching precariously on the ledge of a skyscraper he had been looking about him in two directions.

Below him, the city spread like a map. He could see the buildings going up. He thought of their value. He thought of the landlords who owned them. He thought of his own days as a land-lord—back in a little European village where he was born.

Before him, through the window panes he was cleaning, he could see business men at work—with their minds. He had a mind, too, and he resolved to use it. Perhaps, he too, would some day become wealthy.

That was four years ago. Today his ambition is realized. He is the landlord of a $100,000 apartment in an exclusive part of town. He owns his own home, and has purchased other pieces of real estate, too.

But he is still washing windows. "Through them," he says, "I get my insight into business affairs."

"But eventually," my family will make me give up the job. It has served its purpose. It has given me the chance to make my money—and soon I'll make it work for me."

Like all successes, Panko has his rule of conduct. Here is his declaration:

1. Even if you make a little, spend less.
2. But though you spend little save lots.
3. A hard grind is always worth it.
4. Make your last investment in your home. It helps you save.
5. No one ever made a fortune in cheap stocks.
6. A family budget is the first tool of the married man who wants to make a fortune.
7. Work hard for your money, and then make it work hard for you.
8. Always keep some ready money on hand for emergencies.
9. Pay cash when it means lower prices, but make judicious use of credit.
10. Always talk things over with your wife.

In two weeks the plague kills 17,000 in the Punjab district of India. The epidemic struts in the jungles as well as cities.

Health is a matter of sanitation even more than outdoor life.

The child death rate is higher on New York state farms than in the Lower East Side of New York City.

WINDOW WASHER TELLS HOW TO BE LAMORDED
By JUNE HADDAWAY.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Tanko Sokolowski, window washer, who has just stepped up into the ranks of plutocracy, by purchasing a $100,000 apartment house in which some of his employees live, contributed his new status as a landlord today—by washing a few windows.

The writer found him, a fly-like figure, high up the side of a Newark office building. He was doing some ninth floor window with a strap around his waist to keep him from hurtling into the street below.

Sokolowski was a very busy man, as he has been all of his eleven years in the window-washing business. But finally by dint of incessant signalling, he was induced to come down from his perch and tell how you go about becoming a landlord. The formalities were simple.

Work hard; don't smoke; shun the movies; go to bed nights; earn all you can, spend as little as you can—and you'll always have money in what would be your old tobacco box, if you smoked.

Sokolowski is a thin little man, who hails from Ukraine. He said he was 27 but it would have been easier to believe he was 50. Since he came to America in 1911, settling at once in Newark, he has never seen Orange. The only time he ever saw New York was when he landed there. Sometime before he dies, he thinks he may visit the big city, but he showed no immediate urge to do so.

"New York far away—cost much money," he explained.

His only recreation at present, Sokolowski said, is going to church on Sunday with his wife and four children. The rest of the time, he works, eats and sleeps. He has never taken a vacation—that would cost him two weeks' income.

Sokolowski gave much of the credit for his success to his thrifty wife and Mrs. Sokolowski modestly admitted that maybe Tanko was right. For instance, she pointed out, in tones that carried above the clamor of her four children, that she herself had been a landlord for several years. She bought and owns in fee simple, whatever that means, the house in which the Sokolowskis live and parts of which they rent to five other families.

We married in Newark eleven years ago," she said, briefly summing up her life. "I still wash windows. I wash every day, wash, iron, cook and clean houses of fine ladies. When I come home, nights, you think I spend money for candy? No, I hide it in bank. I earn big money, $25 a month. I save it—for my children."

Mrs. Sokolowski paused to arbitrate an issue that had arisen among the children and then returned.

"My husband good man," she concluded. "He come home at night, never drink, smoke, never want to run around. We eat dinner, take cup of coffee and go to bed. Why go to the movies? They hurt my eyes. Why go to New York? Trolley cars make me sick. We work hard all day and at night we tired. We go to bed."

CHICAGO'S FAREWELL TO WANDA STOPA!

Ten thousand morbidly curious men, women and children crowded into Chicago's "Little Poland" for the funeral of Wanda Stopa. Five thousand more waited three, four, even five hours at the cemetery just to catch a glimpse of the casket. Here is a section of the crowd that jammed the street in front of the Stopa apartment while the services were in progress. In the circle a police detail is seen keeping back the lines as the casket is being lifted into the hearse. A frantic vendor did a thriving business through the crowd. Old school chums served as pallbearers and carried the floral offering that marked friends' sympathy for the girl who ended her life after she had killed Henry Manning, caretaker at the suburban home of the man she loved, Y. Kenley Smith.

When Miss America—in Tights!—Told the Professors a Few Secrets

In She Breezed, and with Somersaults and Handsprings She Showed the French Academy Why Women Should NEVER Sit on Chairs.

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

IN the stately auditorium of the Sorbonne, at the University of Paris, one of the proudest and most august bodies in all the world was in session—the French Academy of Medicine.

Men whose names are like a foundation upon which the vast structure of medical history is reared sat about the long tables, grave-eyed, thoughtful, wrapped in dignity. Occasionally one would lean toward his neighbor; there would be an exchange of opinions behind gray beards—and the eternal offensive against disease and death would have advanced a trifle.

An air of expectation seemed to hang over the scientists. It was evident they awaited the appearance of the speaker of the day—possibly some dignified fellow-savant who would talk to them in technical phrases that would be so much jargon to the layman.

Suddenly the doors were swung back. A uniformed attendant stood at salute. In a ringing voice he announced:

"Mademoiselle Margaret Lourka!"

A world famous medico exclaimed. "Ah! La Americaine!" As nearly as such a thing could be possible, sensation ruffled the poise of the assemblage. Tradition was about to be shattered! For the first time in the annals of the proud university a woman had been invited to lecture upon physical culture for women—and an American woman at that!

The gray-haired, beetle-browed, thought-weighted members of the French Academy settled themselves to listen to a learned lecture on the technique of physical training as a cure for feminine ailments. Their courteous restraint was the tribute of savant to savant—of age-old dignity to dignity as age-old.

And then—
A pretty girl in a brilliant kimono breezed into the room!

Through the doors, past the giggling attendants, straight across the polished floor she tripped with a curiously graceful suggestion of doing it to music, falling within a few feet of the long table and flashing an unembarrassed smile up and down its length!

The scientists gasped. So THIS was the physical culturist who had come all the way across the ocean to lecture within the awesome austerity of that hall!

She bowed, rather like a butterfly fluttering before a group of eagles. Gray heads, white heads, bald heads dipped; though it must be admitted that astonishment held some quite rigid.

Mademoiselle spoke a few words of introduction and the tension began to lift.

And then—
The pretty girl removed the kimono, revealing a "perfect 34" in a tight-fitting one-piece bathing suit!

The scientists gasped again. And this time amazement appeared to settle on them and rob them fast.

Miss Lourka had attended the conference on physical culture for women at the University of Paris for the purpose of indorsing a special exercises for the use of French girl students. When she was invited to lecture before the French Academy before returning to the United States, the invitation had indicated that the savants wished her views on systems of physical culture for women in America—with detailed descriptions of exercises and so on.

Miss Lourka had accepted the invitation. And now, as she stood in their midst, in the creaseless one-piece bathing suit and the smile, the members of the Academy realized that she had taken them exactly at their word. Not only would she tell them about her exercises—but she would demonstrate them while her lecture progressed.

While doctors and professors looked on Miss Lourka turned a series of somersaults round and round the floor. She lay comfortably upon her back and touched the rug beyond her head with her toes—right foot, left foot, both feet.

She stood on her left foot and caressed the back of her head with her right heel. She balanced comfortably on her hands and made her feet walk about in a circle, turning her body as they traveled. She squatted on her heels and stood erect two score times without once bending the spine.

Then finally she dropped to all fours and scampered about like a terrier in lively search of a rat!

And not one of the stately scientists left the hall!

When her final "exercise" was finished, the pretty girl arose, donned her kimono, fluttered her butterfly bow and observed:

"Such is the training, messieurs, by which American women retain health and youth!"

But the lecture was not over. It chanced that the Academy was interested—surprisingly so. There were various points upon which the members wished information. The "setting up" exercises, for example—how would those benefit the health of women according to the claim of mademoiselle?

Miss Lourka explained. Half the ailments of European as well as of American women are the outcome of abdominal troubles, slight deformities, subnormal development, grave consequences attendant upon minor causes.

The inactive life of the modern woman is the reason for such difficulties. The high-bred woman who lives with small physical effort and whose exercise is a bit of ballroom dancing, suffers, as do her sisters who toil in shop and office, sitting about all day and seldom walking or otherwise exercising.

Peasant women, who spend their lives at work in the field, are beset by few such maladies. Their tissues are developed and their muscles strengthened by the hard work they do. In all the world the peasant is the most admirable woman, the one most to be envied and approved—physically.

Excepting (said Miss Lourka) the woman of the East. The harem women of Turkey and Persia escape the ailments that always menace the women of the Occident. Why?

Because, Miss Lourka exclaimed, they do not sit upon chairs!

The chair, she told the French Academy of Medicine, is the real bane of women!

"The women of the East crouch upon the floor or they slip gracefully to their cushions," explained Miss Lourka. "The constant motion of dropping and rising brings into play each of the intra-abdominal muscles, strengthening and developing them. In such manner ailments are avoided."

"Perhaps it is impossible for all European and American women to go about sinking to cushions or crouching on the floor. Their system of filling all resting places with chairs prevents what would be such a desirable and healthful custom for them."

Accordingly they must remedy the deficiency by faithful application to the "squat-rise, squat-rise"—without bending the spine, of course—set of exercises demonstrated before the scientists by Miss Lourka herself!

The pretty American told further of her experiments with the "dog" daily dozen. Canterng about the floor on elbows and knees is the surest, safest, sanest fat-reducing process ever offered to anxious femininity to date, she declared!

The trick is not to creep like a baby, but to move alternate sides of the body—right arm, left knee—as a dog moves. This, Miss Lourka claimed, will take almost an inch a minute off the hips.

With this final exposition of her health secrets Miss Lourka again donned her kimono, bowed, smiled and vanished with a wave of her hand. But not before the members of the French Academy of Medicine, to the last man, had risen and given a ringing vote of appreciation and thanks to the only woman who ever appeared before them—in tights!

BOXING FEDERATION

O. K.'S CARP'S VICTORY

(By The Associated Press.) VIENNA, May 2.—The Vienna Boxing Federation, after having studied motion picture films of the fight between Georges Carpentier and Arthur Tonawley, the British lightweight, on Thursday, decided today that Carpentier had fairly knocked out Tonawley.

The referee counted Tonawley in the second round, after Carpentier had delivered what was called a solar plexus blow. Fight experts at the ringside agreed with the referee that the blow was a fair one. A protest was made to the Boxing Federation, however, it being charged that Carpentier's final blow was a foul. The money was held up pending the decision by the Boxing Federation.

Pullman Charges Held Excessive

(By The Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, May 2.—Passenger fare sur-charges paid by Pullman travelers to railroads are held unreasonable and discontinue of the practice is recommended in an examiner's report to the Interstate Commerce Commission made public today.

Arguments in the case before the commission are assigned for May 8.

Considering the railroads are saved the capital investment in pullman equipment and other facilities necessary to maintain and to an extent to operate the cars and that most of the railroads are receiving substantial payments out of the service proper, the report says, it is believed that the time has come when the commission may well eliminate the sur-charge.

Investigation into the reasonableness of the sur-charge rates was instituted by the commission, at request of travelers' organizations, chambers of commerce, shippers, hotel associations and other associations.

The examiner recommended that greater use of upper berths in pullmans be enforced by the railroads to reduce the expense of providing sleeping car service and advanced the opinion that even if the railroads are not adequately repaid under their pullman charges, the public interest would be served by the elimination of the sur-charge.

Contracts for hauling the heavier materials, the roads have no right to impose a sur-charge "to recoup losses growing out of their improvidence in failing to make contracts which would afford them proper compensation for the service of hauling the cars."

The pullman sur-charge is fifty per cent. of the amount of charges for the peace occupied by the passenger, and was established August 26, 1920 to produce additional revenues with which to meet any increases, awarded to railroad employees by the railroad labor board.

FILES ACTION ON PIERCE OIL CORP.

(By The Associated Press.) NEW YORK, May 2.—Action filed by Miss Mabel C. Priest, a stockholder of the Pierce Oil Corporation in St. Louis today to throw the corporation into receivership was characterized by the oil company's counsel here today as a spite suit to block the pending reorganization. Steps will be taken immediately to have the proceedings dismissed, it was said.

Mrs. Priest, according to a statement issued by Samuel Untermyer, attorney for the Pierce Oil Company who led the fight for the reorganization of the company, is a director of the corporation.

"Mr. Priest recently has been sued by the corporation," Mr. Untermyer said, "for having conspired with Henry Clay Pierce unlawfully to seize control of the corporation. Mr. Priest also has been sued for the recovery of enough lawyers' fees paid to him out of the corporate funds."

"This is just a little playful backfire on Priest's part in the hope of obstructing the pending reorganization. The whole controversy was thrashed out in the Virginia court where Priest and his associates were ousted and their election declared void."

LUMBER SEATTLE, May 2.—Loggers of western Washington have curtailed production sharply. There is an oversupply of logs in the water and one of the largest districts in the northwest, in Snohomish county, closed down entirely owing to lessening output of lumber by the mills and a falling off in demand from the Atlantic Coast.

Mrs. Priest, according to a statement issued by Samuel Untermyer, attorney for the Pierce Oil Company who led the fight for the reorganization of the company, is a director of the corporation.

"Mr. Priest recently has been sued by the corporation," Mr. Untermyer said, "for having conspired with Henry Clay Pierce unlawfully to seize control of the corporation. Mr. Priest also has been sued for the recovery of enough lawyers' fees paid to him out of the corporate funds."

"This is just a little playful backfire on Priest's part in the hope of obstructing the pending reorganization. The whole controversy was thrashed out in the Virginia court where Priest and his associates were ousted and their election declared void."

There is an oversupply of logs in the water and one of the largest districts in the northwest, in Snohomish county, closed down entirely owing to lessening output of lumber by the mills and a falling off in demand from the Atlantic Coast.

FORCED ACTION ON FARM BILL EXPECTED

(By The Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, May 2.—Support of farm relief legislation are expected to force the issue before Congress adjourns.

The McNary-Haugen bill was favorably reported to the House today by the House Agriculture Committee and in the Senate, Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, said, he planned to introduce the bill tomorrow as a rider to the revenue bill to bring the issue squarely before that body.

Some members of the Farm Bloc are known to oppose the action contemplated by Senator Norbeck and believe the bill should first pass the House because of its tariff provisions before action is taken by the Senate. Whether the measure should be placed as a revenue bill is a disputed point but in order to quiet the question some of the members want House action first.

The formal report of the House committee contends that America cannot have "industrial prosperity much longer with growing agricultural poverty."

The report quotes the Secretary of Agriculture as saying that one out of every four farms in the fifteen corn and wheat states is bankrupt.

The measure, which would create a $200,000,000 grain export corporation with to power to borrow twice this amount, the report asserts, addresses itself to the despatch in purchasing power of farm products, the chief of which, corn, wheat, beef and pork are "only about 70 per cent. of the pre-war average," while the price index of non-agriculture commodities stands at 168 per cent.

MAN CLAIMS HE WAS ROBBED WHILE UNCONSCIOUS

(By The Associated Press.) CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 2.—His mind a blank since he boarded a train at Louisville for Boston last Monday, J. Godfrey Elliott, Philadelphia tax expert, regained consciousness at a Cincinnati Hospital Thursday night, and reported to police that he had been robbed of checks, money and jewelry valued at $10,000.

Police records show that on April 29, Elliott was taken off a train here, in an unconscious condition and was held for observation. It was believed at the time he was suffering merely from a fainting spell and nothing was known of the robbery. According to his story, the last thing Elliott can remember was going to bed soon after boarding the train.

CHEESE PLYMOUTH, Wis., May 2.—Stocks of cheese in storage increased during the past week, with current trading heavier by $15.82 pounds than the week before. Both private and cold storage stocks jumped, while the trade output was ahead of the corresponding period last year.

A CARD In going out of business we wish to say to every man, woman and child in Danville and surrounding country, that we most heartily appreciate every purchase made by each and every customer, and it is with deep regret that we find it expedient to close our business. We could continue by continually putting up money and we could arrange the money, but in the long business depression that has prevailed in the trade and with the buying public we can see no relief in the future, so for the best interest of all concerned we have decided to liquidate the business at once.

Buys House By Washing Windows

THE $100,000 NEWARK (N. J.) APARTMENT WHICH HAS JUST BEEN PURCHASED BY PANKO MATIVI SOKOLOWSKI, WINDOW-CLEANER, SHOWN (IN INSET) WITH HIS CHILDREN.

NEWARK, N. J., May 3.—Opportunity for Panko Mativi Sokolowski, late of the Ukraine, knocked on a window pane.

And he grabbed it with both hands. For window cleaning, on the edge of the city skyline, had given him a broad perspective of American life.

For years while perching precariously on the ledge of a skyscraper he had been looking about him in two directions.

Below him, the city spread like a map. He could see now buildings going up. He thought of their value. He thought of his own days as land-lord—back in a little European village where he was born.

Before him, through the window panes he was cleaning, he could see business men at work—with their minds. He had a mind, too, and he resolved to use it. Perhaps, he, too, would some day become wealthy.

That was four years ago. Today his ambition is realized. He is the landlord of a $100,000 apartment in an exclusive part of town. He owns his own home, and has purchased other pieces of real estate, too.

But he is still washing windows. "Through them," he says, "I get my insight into business affairs."

"But eventually my family will make me give up the job. It has served its purpose. It has given me the chance to make my money—and soon I'll make it work for me."

Like all successes Panko has his rule of conduct. Here is his declaration:

1. Even if you make a little, spend less.
2. But though you spend little save lots.
3. A hard grind is always worth it.
4. Make your first investment in your home. It helps one save.
5. No one ever made a fortune in cheap stocks.
6. A family budget is the first tool of the married man who wants to make a fortune.
7. Work hard for your money, and then make it work hard for you.
8. Always keep some ready money on hand for bargains.
9. Pay cash when it means lower prices, but make judicious use of credit.
10. Always talk things over with your wife.

The REFEREE

BY ALBERT APPLE.

HOODS
Before prohibition, the grape crop of our country was paying 45 million dollars a year to the growers. Now they are getting 315 million dollars a year. So claims Editor Windle of the Iconoclast. The answer is in the keg in the cellar.

Soft drink manufacturers also have profited tremendously by prohibition. So have business men, who are getting the dollars that used to be rung up in the barroom cash register.

Powerful forces stand ready to oppose the return of anything alcoholic. Most active would be the manufacturers whose dollars did much to bring prohibition, their purpose being to get more work out of their men. Prohibition came as an economic matter, not moral.

CELLAR
"All the efforts that have been made since 1840 have been directed to driving liquor out of the home. We were succeeding until the prohibition law was passed. We are now raising a generation of young people who are seeing their fathers and mothers discussing around the table ways of getting a beverage with the most kick in it, and we are undoing the work of 80 years."

A minister says this before a congressional committee. His is a new angle on prohibition. Worth thinking about.

STRICKEN
In two weeks the plague kills 17,000 in the Punjab district of India. The epidemic struts in the jungles as well as cities.

Health is a matter of sanitation even more than outdoor life. The child death rate is higher on New York state farms than in the Lower East Side of New York City.

WINDOW WASHER TELLS HOW TO BE LANDLORD

By JUNE MADDAWAY.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Tanke Sokolowski, window washer, who has stepped up into the ranks of plutocracy, by purchasing a $100,000 apartment house in which some of his employers live, contributed his new status as a landlord today—by washing a few windows.

The writer found him, a fly-like figure, high up the side of a Newark office building. He was doing some ninth floor windows, with a strap around his waist to keep him from hurtling into the street below.

Sokolowski was a very busy man, as he has been all of his eleven years in the window-washing business. But finally by dint of insistent signalling, he was induced to come down from his perch and tell how you "so about becoming a landlord today—by washing a few windows."

"Work hard; have your wife work hard; don't drink; don't smoke; shun the movies, go to bed nights; earn all you can, spend as little as you can—and you'll always have money, in what would be your old tobacco box, if you smoked."

Sokolowski is a thin little man, who hails from Ukraine. He said he was 37 but it would have been easier to believe he was 50. Since he came to America in 1911, settling at once in Newark, he has never been further from home than East Orange. The only time he ever saw New York was when he landed there. Sometime before he dies, he thinks he may visit the big city, but he showed no immediate urge to do so.

"New York, far away—cost much money," he explained. "His only recreation at present, Sokolowski said, is going to church on Sunday with his wife and four children. The rest of the time, he works, eats and sleeps. He has never taken a vacation—that would cost him two weeks' income."

Sokolowski gave much of the credit for his success to his thrifty wife and Mrs. Sokolowski modestly admitted that maybe Tanke was right. For instance, she pointed out, in tones that carried above the clamor of her four children, that she herself had been a landlord for several years. She bought and owns in fee simple, whatever that means, the house in which the Sokolowskis live and parts of which they rent to five other families.

"We married in Newark eleven years ago," she said, briefly summing up her life. "Until babies come, I work hard every day, wash, iron, cook and clean houses of fine ladies. When I come home, nights, you think I am in bank. I earn big money, $25 a month. I save it—for my children."

Mrs. Sokolowski paused to arbitrate an issue that had arisen among the children and then returned.

"My husband, good man," she concluded. "He come home at night, never drink, smoke, never want to run around. We eat dinner, take cup of coffee and go to bed. Why go to the movies? They hurt my eyes. Why go to New York? Trolley cars make me sick. We work hard all day and at night we tired. We go to bed."

CHICAGO'S FAREWELL TO WANDA STOPA!

Ten thousand morbidly curious men, women and children crowded into Chicago's "Little Poland" for the funeral of Wanda Stopa. Five thousand more waited three, four, even five hours at the cemetery just to catch a glimpse of the casket. Here is a section of the crowd that jammed the street in front of the Stopa apartment while the services were in progress. In the circle a police detail is seen keeping back the lines as the casket is being lifted into the hearse. A peanut vendor did a thriving business through the crowd. Old school chums served as pallbearers and carried the floral offering that marked friends' sympathy for the girl who ended her life after she had killed Henry Manning, caretaker at the suburban home of the man she loved. Everyman's Investments

Debtless Bonds and Why a Good Corporation's Word is Better Than a Good Man's Word.

Sixteen million dollars of 5 1-2 per cent debtless bonds were recently by the Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania. A few weeks before that the American Telephone and Telegraph Company offered 100 million dollars of 5 1-2 per cent debtless bonds. Both issues were sold immediately. These two issues illustrate a valuable and simple phase of financing that is not fully appreciated by the public. In personal business transactions men and banks readily accept unsecured, promissory notes when the general credit of the debtor is high. In a sense a debtless bond is similar to a promissory note. It is, however, much more than that. It is true that the loan is unsecured in that nothing is specifically mortgaged. Nevertheless there are certain protective provisions in all sound debtless issues which raise the investment above the promissory note.

Consider for instance the provisions under which the two debentures referred to were sold. The Gulf Oil corporation agrees that so long as any of these 5 1-2 per cent debentures are outstanding and unpaid it will not create or permit to exist any secured indebtedness upon or against its properties including the properties of subsidiary companies excepting purchase money obligations on hereafter acquired property. It also agrees that the quick assets of the company and its subsidiaries shall at all time be at least equal to the aggregate amount of their indebtedness including the amount of these bonds then outstanding.

In the same way the American Telephone & Telegraph company undertakes not to put any mortgage upon any of its telephone lines or plants unless at the same time it puts up as security for these debentures stocks and bonds of its operating companies. In other words it will not increase its secured indebtedness unless at the same time it puts up collateral for these now unsecured debentures. The idea is that if at any time the future the company finds it necessary to give security for new capital the interests of the holders of the debentures will not be subordinated. Similar provisions have been embodied in many railroad debentures in some cases they have proved of great value to the holders.

Before purchasing a security of this kind the particular provision should be carefully examined in each case but when to the restrictions upon the company in a debtless bond are added a long and honorable record of promptly meeting its obligations, a sound financial condition exhibited by its balance sheet and profitable operation testified to by earnings statements debtless bonds rank with many mortgage loans.

A recent Texas supreme court decision now makes it free for railroads to discontinue unprofitable branch lines and use trucks off the main line instead. The Texas decision is important in that it sets a precedent.
